Acknowledgments

I would like to thank G. P. Mosback who started compiling this dictionary with me but due to contractual termination had to discontinue at an early stage.

My heartfelt thanks go to H.T. George, of the Department of Foreign Languages and Literature, Addis Ababa University, who was always ready to solve my queries regarding the English language.

For the proof-reading, the help of Tesfaye Shewaye, Alemayehu Abebe, both of the Department of Ethiopian Languages and Literature as well as S.S. Singh, V.J. Uniyal and Akalu Getaneh of the Department of Foreign Languages and Literature, in the same University, should be mentioned with deep gratitude.

Introduction

This dictionary contains some 15,000 carefully selected Amharic words in current use. It is hoped that it will serve secondary as well as tertiary school students as a handy reference book. There is no doubt that it will also give great service to those who endeavour to learn either the Amharic or the English language. It will be of special help to those who study Amharic as a second language, since it provides idiomatic expressions which are in common use among Amharic mother tongue speakers.

While producing this work, the compiler consulted many monoligual as well as bilingual dictionaries, dealing with the Amharic language. The first type of dictionaries contributed to the selection of very common everyday Amharic words, while the second helped to compare meanings which sometimes seemed ambiguous.

In this dictionary modern science and technology terms that had found their way into the Amharic language have been incorporated. All the others, which were felt to be rather doubtful and which have several cognates, were disregarded, since this would contribute to complicating the matter even worse. However, in the future when such terms start to get a firm root in the language, their inclusion will become inevitable.

Remarks on the entries

Like many other Semitic languages, Amharic lexical entries are either a) verbs, which are in the third person, singular, past tense or b) nouns. Both of them are followed by their respective derived forms.

In alphabetising Amharic entries, the conventional U.A.A... order is followed rather than the traditional A. A. A. A. one since the latter would create unnecessary confusion, and it is a system which is not very well known among the population at large.

Previous Amharic bilingual dictionary compilers have intentionally left out many derived forms, since they thought that affixes could make many meanings of such words easily predictable. However, being conscious that this assumption does not always help, nearly all derived forms have been incorporated. To clarify this, the following example can be given. http://linear.com/linear-indicate diametrically different connotations. While the first gives the notion of "had s/o bitten", thus with a causative meaning behind it, the second means "scared" and therefore does not convey the meaning of the attached prefix hthe and had could also be taken to illustrate this point more clearly.

Translation

Due to the cultural differences between the two languages, it sometimes becomes very difficult to translate an Amharic word into an English one, which would convey exactly the same meaning. Therefore it becomes imperative to translate such words by a phrase, a clause or even a sentence.

Apart from the dictionaries mentioned earlier, Leslau's Amharic-English, English-Amharic Dictionary and Amharic Contextual Dictionary were a great help in counter-checking the meanings of Amharic words in English.

Regarding the names of animals and plants, Fissiha Haile Meskel's でんみできた。 ナイイマン ナイイマン A A でもする and, the Preliminary Word List of the Science and Technology Terms Translating Project" were of great help.

Notes on the Use of the Dictionary

Pronunciation

a) Stress

The Amharic language has very many words that are pronounced with stresses (gemination). Therefore, it is very essential to show this by some conventional means: otherwise, a foreign learner of the language would be helpless to differentiate between those words that should be stressed and those that should not. The stress marker used in this dictionary is the doubling of the consonant that should be stressed or geminated. For example, the word of the consories as waffārā.

b) Consonants

The following are given Latin equivalents for Ethiopian characters, sometimes with diacritical signs whenever the need arises.

ሀሐኀ	Th h	₹ €	g. d
٨	1	5 n	E š
₽	m	7 A	i g
w A	S	አ o a,'	m ĭ
. ८ त	г	h k	as č
	Ś	oo w	2 0 s
+	q	H Z	A P
Ω	b	7f t	î l
	t .	₹ y	T p.

a) Vowels

The Amharic short vowel, which does not appear in writing, is transcribed with an umlout "a": that is, "ā". For example, "new" is transcribed as "gāṭṭāmā". Note also here the doubling of the "f" as a stress marker. The remaining vowels are:

y	. 1
ሎ	¥
λ.	i
•	ŧ
λ	a
λ	0

Amharic dipthongs such as "* h-" are transcribed as follows:

7-	-	gu≈ā	eg,	ጉረ ወሰ	gu"ärrämmäsä
1	-	ku"ə		ኩርኩ ም	ku"ərku"əm
2	•	hu"a		31	huwala

c) Compound words

When a word is compounded with other words, the main word is represented by a dash(-)

- ያይን - አውጣ (instead of ዐይን አውጣ) - አፋር (" " ዐይን አፋር)
